European Advisory Board

We are delighted to announce the formation of the Princeton University Press European Advisory Board. This group of distinguished scholars, journalists, and writers will advise us as we pursue our mission to publish the very best European scholarship across all the fields in which the Press publishes.

—Al Bertrand, Publishing Director, Europe

Philip Ball

Philip Ball is a freelance science writer. He worked previously at Nature for over 20 years, first as an editor for physical sciences (for which his brief extended from biochemistry to quantum physics and materials science) and then as a Consultant Editor.

Philip is the author of many popular books on science, including works on the nature of water, pattern formation in the natural world, colour in art, the cognition of music, and the science of social and political philosophy.

Philip writes regularly for Nature, especially as an online columnist. He has contributed to publications ranging from New Scientist to the New York Times, the Guardian, the Financial Times and New Statesman. He is the regular science columnist for Prospect magazine, and also a columnist for Chemistry World and Nature Materials. He has broadcast on many occasions on radio and TV, and in June 2004 he presented a three-part serial on nanotechnology, 'Small Worlds', on BBC Radio 4. He has a degree in chemistry from the University of Oxford and a PhD in physics from the University of Bristol.

Jonathan Bate

Jonathan Bate is Professor of Literature at Warwick and soon to be Provost of Worcester College, University of Oxford. He is the author of The Genius of Shakespeare (Picador/OUP USA), John Clare (Picador/Farrar Straus Giroux, 2003). Since 2003 he has been on the Board of the Royal Shakespeare Company, for whom he edited, jointly with Eric Rasmussen, The RSC Shakespeare: Complete Works (Macmillan UK, Random House Modern Library USA, 2007, paperback 2008). His most recent book is the OUP Very Short Introduction to English Literature (2010). He is also the author of the Shakespeare biography, Soul of the Age, parts of which were dramatised as The Man from Stratford, a one-man play for Simon Callow. He is currently writing a biography of Ted Hughes for Faber and Faber.

James Binney

James Binney studied at the Universities of Cambridge, Freiburg i Breisgau & Oxford. In the period 1975-1981 he alternated between positions in Oxford and Princeton. Since 1981 he has been a faculty member and Fellow of Merton College in Oxford.

He has spent sabbaticals at Caltech, Princeton and the University of Arizona, Tucson and for ten years he was a regular visitor to the Institute of Advanced Study, Princeton. During 1994–7 he was President of Division VII of the International Astronomical Union. The Institute of Physics awarded him the Maxwell Prize for 1986 and the Dirac Prize for 2010. He received the Brouwer Award for 2003 from the American Astronomical Society. In 2000 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society.

His research concerns the structure, dynamics and formation of galaxies.
Richard Bourke
Richard Bourke is Reader in the History of Political Thought at Queen Mary, University of London. He has been a Fellow of the John Carter Brown Library (2004), the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation (2006–07), the Clark Memorial Library (2009), the Beinecke (2010) and the Huntington (2011). His book, Peace in Ireland: The War of Ideas (2003) was short-listed for the Ewart-Biggs Memorial Prize in 2005. He has commented on current affairs for BBC television, the BBC World Service, the Financial Times and The Irish Times, and reviews regularly for Political Quarterly and the Times Literary Supplement. He has also appeared on Melvyn Bragg’s “In our Time” on Radio 4. He recently co-edited Political Judgement (2009) with Raymond Geuss, and is the author of a forthcoming biography of Edmund Burke to be published by PUP.

Kai Brodersen
Kai Brodersen is President of the University of Erfurt in Germany, and Professor of Ancient Culture. In previous years, he taught at the Universities of Munich, and Mannheim, and held Visiting Appointments at Newcastle, St Andrews, Royal Holloway, and Oxford Universities, and is a member of the Saxon Academy of Sciences. He has written more than a dozen books on aspects of the classical world.

Paul Cartledge
Paul Cartledge was educated at Oxford (DPhil 1975) and is the inaugural (2008) A.G. Leventis Professor of Greek Culture at Cambridge University, where he has been a member of the Faculty of Classics since 1979. He is also a Professorial Fellow of Clare College, Cambridge, and President of the Fellowship. He has written, co-written, edited and co-edited well over 20 books and monographs, and co-edits two monograph series. His most recent publications include Ancient Greece: A History in Eleven Cities, Ancient Greek Political Thought in Practice, and vol 1 of The Cambridge World History of Slavery. He is an Honorary Citizen of Sparta, an Honorary Doctor in Economics of the University of Thessaly, and has been decorated with the Gold Cross of the Order of Honour by the President of the Hellenic Republic.

Diane Coyle
Diane Coyle runs the consultancy Enlightenment Economics, an economic consultancy to large corporate clients and international organisations, specialising in new technologies and globalisation. She is also visiting Professor at the University of Manchester's Institute for Political and Economic Governance. She was an economist at the UK Treasury from 1985 to 1986, and later worked as European Editor of The Investors Chronicle and Economics Editor of The Independent newspaper.

Dr Coyle is a BBC Trustee, and a former member of the UK’s Competition Commission. She is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts, a member of the Research Committee of the Economic and Social Science Research Council, and a Trustee of the Friends Provident Foundation and the Wincott Foundation. She has served on a number of public bodies and corporate advisory boards. Dr Coyle was appointed Officer of the Order of the British Empire (OBE) in the 2009 New Year Honours for services to economics.

Diane Coyle is the author of The Soulful Science and The Economics of Enough, both published by PUP, among her publications.
David Goodhart
David Goodhart is the founder and now editor-at-large of Prospect magazine, a London-based current affairs monthly launched in 1995. He is the author of the forthcoming book Citizens, which examines issues related to multiculturalism, national identity and immigration. Before founding Prospect, he was a senior correspondent for the Financial Times.

Sunetra Gupta
Sunetra Gupta is Professor of Theoretical Epidemiology at Oxford University's Department of Zoology. Her work focuses on the evolution of diversity in pathogens, with particular reference to the infectious disease agents that are responsible for malaria, influenza and bacterial meningitis. She is also an acclaimed novelist, essayist and scientist. Her fifth novel, So Good in Black was published in February 2009. She has been named as the winner of the 2009 Royal Society Rosalind Franklin Award for her scientific achievements.

Sally Hardy
Sally Hardy is Chief Executive of the Regional Studies Association, an international learned society publishing two ISI ranked journals, Regional Studies and Spatial Economic Analysis, two magazines, Regions and Regional Insights and a book series, Regions and Cities. Sally is a member of the Research Information Network Advisory Board and has been an active member of the Association of Learned and Professional Society Publishers (ALPSP) for more than 20 years. Sally is currently developing ideas for new start journals reflecting changes in the intellectual field of regional studies. She is also interested in promoting best practice in knowledge transfer within learned societies and works closely with colleagues in policy and practice at the European Commission, United Nations and OECD promoting interchange improving the quality and applicability of research. A core concern is membership management and Sally was joint author of the RSA Development Plan which sets out the organisation’s ambitions and strategies looking forward. Sally has held several Council posts at the Academy of Social Sciences where she is an Academician. Sally has considerable expertise in international conference and event organisation and has sat on the Foundation for Science and Technology, Conference Committee.

Stephen Harrison
Stephen Harrison is Professor of Latin Literature and Fellow and Tutor in Classics at Corpus Christi College, University of Oxford. He is the editor of more than ten books on Latin literature and its reception and is the author of a number of books on Roman poetry, including commentaries on Vergil and Horace. He has served as a visiting Professor at the Universities of Bergen and Copenhagen.

Will Hutton
Will Hutton is executive vice chair of The Work Foundation, the most influential voice on work, employment and organisation issues in the UK.
He began his career in the city, as a stockbroker and investment analyst before moving to the BBC, where he worked both on radio, as a producer and reporter, and on TV as economics correspondent for Newsnight. Will spent four years as editor-in-chief of The Observer. Will’s best-known book is probably The State We’re In, which was seen at the time as setting the scene for the Blair revolution. Since then he has published The State to Come, The Stakeholding Society, On The Edge (with Anthony Giddens), The Writing on the Wall: China and the West in the 21st Century. His latest book is called Them and Us: Changing Britain – Why we need a fair society.

Will is also a governor of the London School of Economics. He is a member of the Scott Trust board, and a fellow of the Sunningdale Institute.

He is currently the chair of the Commission on Ownership which is examining to what extent and how ownership matters. He is also chair of the Public Sector Fair Pay Review.

Lucien Jaume

Lucien Jaume is Director of Research at CNRS, and a lecturer at Sciences Po, Paris. He also teaches at the European School for Advanced Studies in Naples (Suor Orsola Benincasa Institute). He is a philosopher and a political theorist, specializing in the history of liberalism and the concepts of the modern state such as sovereignty and representation. He has published eight books, including Les origines philosophiques du libéralisme and Tocqueville : Les sources aristocratiques de la liberté.

John Kay

John Kay is one of Britain’s leading economists. He publishes a weekly column in the Financial Times. His latest book, Obliquity – Why our goals are best pursued indirectly – has just been published, and his major work on the operation of market economies, The Truth about Markets, appeared in 2003. He was formerly Director of the Institute for Fiscal Studies, Professor at the London Business School, and was founding Director of the Said Business School.

Peter Knight

Professor Sir Peter Knight is Principal of the Kavli Royal Society International Centre at Chicheley Hall, and Professor of Quantum Optics at Imperial College London. He was until September 2010 Deputy Rector (Research) at Imperial College responsible for the College’s research strategy. He was knighted in the Queen’s Birthday Honours List in 2005 for his work in optical physics. Sir Peter is the immediate past chair of the Defence Scientific Advisory Council at the UK Ministry of Defence and continues to advise on the use of science within UK government bodies. He is a Council member of the Science and Technology Facilities Council. His research centres on theoretical quantum optics, strong field physics and especially on quantum information science. He has won a number of prizes and awards including the Thomas Young Medal and the Glazebrook Medal of the Institute of Physics, the Royal Medal of the Royal Society and the Ives Medal of the OSA. He has been a Visiting Professor at the University of Louvain-la-Neuve, a Humboldt Research Award holder at the University of Konstanz and a Visiting Scholar at the University of Texas at Austin and at the University of Rochester. He is a Fellow of the Institute of Physics, the Optical Society of America and of the Royal Society.
Diarmaid MacCulloch
Diarmaid MacCulloch is Professor of the History of the Church at the University of Oxford. He is a Fellow of the British Academy, and co-edits the Journal of Ecclesiastical History. He has written extensively on Tudor England; his biography “Thomas Cranmer: a Life” (Yale UP, 1996) won the Whitbread Biography, Duff Cooper and James Tait Black Prizes. Previous publications have included "Reformation: Europe's House Divided 1490-1700", with Penguin/Allen Lane (appearing in the USA as “The Reformation: a History). His most recent book is A History of Christianity: the first three thousand years (Penguin) which was accompanied by a major BBC 2 television series, and which won the Cundill History Prize for 2010.

Margaret MacMillan
Professor Margaret MacMillan became Professor of International History at Oxford and the fifth Warden of St Antony's College in July 2007. Prior to taking on the Warden'ship, Professor MacMillan was Provost of Trinity College and professor of History at the University of Toronto. Professor MacMillan's publications include Women of the Raj as well as Peacemakers: the Paris Conference of 1919 and Its Attempt to Make Peace. The latter was published in North America as Paris 1919: Six Months that Changed the World and won the Duff Cooper Prize, the Samuel Johnson Prize for non-fiction, the Hessell-Tiltman Prize for History, the Silver Medal for the Council on Foreign Relations Arthur Ross Book Award and the Governor-General's prize for non-fiction in 2003. It was a New York Times Editor's Choice in 2002. Seize the Hour: When Nixon Met Mao (entitled Nixon and Mao in the US.) was nominated in January 2007 for a Gelber Prize, awarded annually to the best book on international affairs published in English. Her most recent book is The Uses and Abuses of History (Dangerous Games in the US). She comments frequently in the media on historical issues and current affairs

Rana Mitter
Rana Mitter is Professor of the History and Politics of Modern China at Oxford University. Professor Mitter has published on the political and cultural history of twentieth-century China, and is currently working on the connections between war and nationalism in China from the 1930s to the present. He is the author of A Bitter Revolution: China's struggle with the modern world (Oxford: OUP, 2004) and most recently Modern China: a very short introduction (OUP, 2008).

He is also one of the regular presenters of the BBC Radio 3 programme “Night Waves.”

Andrew McNeillie
Andrew McNeillie is a Professor of English at the University of Exeter. He assisted in editing The Diary of Virginia Woolf (5 vols, Hogarth Press) and edited The Essays of Virginia Woolf (vols 1-IV, Hogarth Press). He has published four collections of poetry - Nevermore (2000), Now, Then (2002), Slower (2006),and In Mortal Memory (2010), and is the author of two memoirs Once (2009) and An Aran Keening (2002). Before joining Exeter, Professor McNeillie was the Literature Editor at Oxford University Press and at Blackwell Publishing. He founded the Clutag Press in 2000, an imprint under which he edits the literary magazine Archipelago, and publishes poetry and memoir. Among Clutag's other publications are ORACLAU/ORACLES (2010) by Geoffrey Hill and Laurels and Donkeys (2010) by Andrew Motion.
Ann Mroz
Ann Mroz is editor of Times Higher Education. Before becoming editor in May 2008 she was deputy editor and books editor, which she describes as “the best job in the world”. She is very proud of THE’s books pages and the fact that the magazine reviews over a thousand scholarly books a year.

Geoff Mulgan
Geoff Mulgan is the Chief Executive of the Young Foundation. Between 1997 and 2004 Geoff had various roles in the UK government including director of the Government's Strategy Unit and head of policy in the Prime Minister's office. Before that he was the founder and director of the think-tank Demos. He has also been Chief Adviser to Gordon Brown MP; a lecturer in telecommunications; an investment executive; a reporter on BBC TV and radio, and a visiting professor at LSE, UCL, and Melbourne University. He is a regular lecturer at the China Executive Leadership Academy. He is the author of The Art of Public Strategy (2008), Good and Bad Power (2006) and Connexity (1998). From June 2011 onwards he will be Chief Executive of the National Endowment for Science Technology and the Arts.

Karen O'Brien
Karen O'Brien is currently Professor of Literature at the University of Warwick, and in May will become one of the Pro Vice-Chancellors of the University of Birmingham. She works on the British and French Enlightenments, British literature 1660-1820, the novel, and late eighteenth-century American literature. She is currently co-editing the 1750-1820 volume of The Oxford History of the Novel and The Cambridge Companion to Gibbon. She is the author of Narratives of Enlightenment: Cosmopolitan History from Voltaire to Gibbon (CUP, 1997) and Women and Enlightenment in Eighteenth-Century Britain (CUP, 2009).

Angus Phillips
Angus Phillips is Director of the Oxford International Centre for Publishing Studies at Oxford Brookes University. He is a leading academic and author in the area of publishing studies, with many years' experience of working in and with the publishing industry. He works as a consultant to the international industry and his books include Inside Book Publishing (with Giles Clark) and The Future of the Book in the Digital Age (edited with Bill Cope). He is the Editor-in-Chief of the journal Logos. Before joining Oxford Brookes he ran a trade and reference list at Oxford University Press.

Danny Quah
Danny Quah is Professor of Economics at LSE, Co-Director of LSE Global Governance, and Research Director of INET at LSE. His research focuses on economic growth, income distribution and inequality, the global economy, and technology. He is a Council Member on Malaysia's National Economic Advisory Council. He is also a Member of the World Economic Forum Global Agenda Council on Economic Imbalances; and serves on the Steering Committee of the Abu Dhabi Economics Research Agency (ADERA) and the Editorial Boards of East Asian Policy, Journal of Economic Growth, and Global Policy. Professor Quah has been Visiting Professor at Tsinghua University, Beijing; teaches at Peking University on the LSE-PKU Summer School; and is Tan Chin Tuan Visiting Professor at the National University of Singapore.
Miri Ribin
Miri Rubin is Professor of Early Modern History at Queen Mary University of London. Her interests cover a wide range of social relations within the predominantly religious cultures of Europe between 1100 and 1600. She is the author of Charity and Community in Medieval Cambridge; Corpus Christi: the Eucharist in late Medieval Culture, Gentile Tales: the Narrative Assault on Late Medieval Jews, and Mother of God: a History of the Virgin Mary (Alan Lane/Yale University Press, 2009).

David Runciman
David Runciman is Reader in Political Thought in the Department of Politics and International Studies at Cambridge University. He works on late-nineteenth and twentieth century political thought, theories of the state, and various aspects of contemporary political philosophy. His work frequently appears in the London Review of Books. He is the author of two PUP books, The Politics of Good Intentions and Political Hypocrisy, as well as the forthcoming The Confidence Trap.

Paul Seabright
Paul Seabright is Professor of Economics at the Toulouse School of Economics. He was formerly a Fellow of All Souls College, Oxford and of Churchill College, Cambridge, and Reader in Economics at the University of Cambridge. He has published research in a wide range of areas of both theoretical and applied microeconomics, with a particular focus on industrial organization and competition policy. He is the author of several books, including The Company of Strangers: A Natural History of Economic Life (Princeton 2004), which was shortlisted for the 2005 British Academy Book Prize. He is a member of European Commission Economic Advisory Group on Competition Policy and a Council Member of the European Economic Association.

Sarah Thomas
Sarah Thomas has served as Bodley's Librarian at the University of Oxford since 2007, where she oversees the Bodleian Libraries, Oxford's major research libraries. She is the first woman and non-British citizen to hold the position in 400 years. From 1996-2007 she was Cornell’s University Librarian. Previously she has worked at the Library of Congress, the National Agricultural Library, the Research Libraries Group, and Harvard’s Widener Library.

Robert H. Wade
Robert H. Wade is professor of political economy at the London School of Economics. Having started his research career at the small-scale end (in Pitcairn Island, a village in central Italy, villages in South India), he moved upscale to state bureaucracies (India, South Korea, Taiwan), and more recently on up to the global level (the World Bank, the G20, the international financial system, financial crises, world income distribution). He won the Leontief Prize in Economics in 2008, and his book, Governing the Market (Princeton, 1990, 2004), won the American Political Science Association's Best Book in Political Economy award. In 2010 he was selected to be the first Sanjaya Lall visiting professor of development studies at Oxford University.
Nigel Warburton
Nigel Warburton has written a number of books including Philosophy: The Basics, Philosophy: The Classics, Thinking from A to Z and The Art Question. He is Senior Lecturer in Philosophy at the Open University. He has also made a number of programmes for BBC Radio 4, writes a weblog called Virtual Philosopher and regularly leads courses on the philosophy of art at Tate Modern. His latest book, Free Speech: A Very Short Introduction, was published in February 2009. He is responsible for the Philosophy Bites podcast along with David Edmonds, and they have co-edited a recent book based on the series.

Jonathan Wolff
Jonathan Wolff is Professor of Philosophy at University College London, and Director of the Centre for Philosophy, Justice and Health. He works primarily in political philosophy and its application to public policy. Among his works are An Introduction to Political Philosophy (OUP 1996 and 2006) Disadvantage (with Avner de-Shalit, OUP 2007) Ethics and Public Policy: A Philosophical Inquiry (Routledge 2011) and The Human Right to Health (Norton 2012). He is currently editing G.A. Cohen's Lectures on the History of Moral and Political Philosophy for Princeton University Press. He is a member of the Nuffield Council on Bioethics and also writes a monthly column for Education Guardian.